THIS IS THE contingent from Appomattox County which attended the recent state 4-H Congress on the Campus of Virginia Tech in Blacksburg.

Local youths attend '84 State 4-H Congress

The 1984 State 4-H Congress was held the week of June 18 - 22 on the Virginia Tech Campus in Blacksburg. More than 1,100 teenagers from across Virginia took part in the Congress activities during the week.

Participating from Appomattox were Cheryl Wooten, Lisa Harrison, Kathy Bryan, JoAnna Layne, Anne Hancock, Jennifer Coleman, Jeff Williams, Darrell Conner, Curtis Moore, Bob Poole, Craig Ranson, Kenneth McClenny and Brett Marston. David Hancock attended as a volunteer leader. Nine 4-H'ers were involved in winning state awards during the week at Congress.

Kenneth McClenny received the top award in the Beef Cow-Calf program which is sponsored by the High individual in the State Forestry Judging Contest. Annette Turner was the state winner in the Milk and Milk Products Presentation Contest. Annette's presentation was entitled "Dairy Delights."

Kathy Bryan won the State Plant and Soil Science Presentation program. Kathy's topic was "The Bilateral Cordon System of Pruning Grapes."

JoAnna Layne and Howard Anderson were members of the state winning Egg Grading Team. JoAnna was also the high scoring individual in the contest while Howard was the sixth high individual in the State Contest. The Egg Grading Team members will receive an out-of-state trip later this year. Bob Poole, Craig Ranson, Curtis Moore and Brett Marston were members of the state winning Soils Judging Team and will travel to Oklahoma next May to compete in the International Land Judging Contest. Bob was second high individual, Curtis was third, Craig was fourth and Brett was fifth high individual in the state contest. The Soils Judging program is sponsored by the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation.

Nancy Cole, Lisa Harrison, Darrell Conner and Kenneth McClenny took part in the State Forestry Judging Contest. The team placed fourth in the state contest.

Tiffany Royal participated in the 4-H Public Speaking Contest. Ada Hunter participated in the Egg Cookery presentation program. Cheryl Wooten was a contestant in the Fashion Revue program. Lisa Williamson and Jennifer Coleman

Kara Davis and Anne Hancock participated in a series of leadership development workshops and classes during the Congress Week.

Special appreciation is extended to the Appomattox Lion's Club who provided partial scholarships for many 4-H'ers to attend Congress.

Smith seeks zoning change for town convenience store

By FRANCES ABBITT

A request from Dr. Larry Smith for a zoning change on the Route 460 property formerly known as Fred's Mini-Mart was heard at Monday night's meeting of the Appomattox Town Council.

Dr. Smith, who recently acquired the property located on the east end of the Town of Appomattox, plans to completely remodel the existing property. When completed the facility will consist of a convenience food store with gasoline and a snack bar. The firm of Garland M. Gay and Associates, Architects, has been engaged to plan and oversee the undertaking, Smith said.

"I plan a complete renovation of the building and hope to have the property as attractive as possible when it is open for business," Smith said.

Tentative plans call for the business to open this fall.

In other business the council approved a tax rate of .20 per hundred on real estate in the Town of Appomattox for 1984.

Real estate assessment in the Town of Appomattox for 1983 was valued at $54,864.00. For 1984 the real estate assessment is $70,192.40. A large portion of the approximately $15,000 increase will be absorbed by Thomasville Furniture Industries.

If we leave the tax rate at .20 per hundred I don't believe it will be a burden to anybody," said Appomattox Mayor Ronald C. Spiggle.

Members of the Appomattox County Department of Social Services appeared before board expressing appreciation for the help from the council and the town in the distribution of commodity foods and for cooperation in implementing the program.

"We are indeed proud of the concern, you, the Town Council of Appomattox, have shown in providing good nutrition for the elderly in this area," said Virginia Babcock, director of the Appomattox County Department of Social Services.

"Appomattox County is able to distribute food on a monthly basis," Babcock continued. "We are fortunate in being able to do this. Surrounding counties and even the City of Lynchburg have not been able to distribute on a monthly basis."

Appearing with Babcock were Francis Elliott, commodity foods coordinator, Randy Williams and Barry Elder of the Appomattox Services, and Louise Martin, board member.

Child abuse

Problem exists here, too

By FRANCES ABBITT

Child abuse is a frightening term, conjuring up mental pictures of such ugliness that we try, as quickly as possible, to dismiss the thought from our mind. But, it's here .... child abuse, in Appomattox County.

According to Maggie Hunter, child protective services worker with the local Department of Social Services, there were 56 cases of child abuse reported in Appomattox County for 1980-81. The figure was even higher for 1981-82, with 72 cases reported in the county. The number dropped for 1982-83 to 42 cases reported.

"We get every kind of abuse in this county," Hunter said.

Exactly what is an abused child?

According to Virginia law, "the abused or neglected child is any child under 18 years of age whose parents or any person responsible to cause a non-accidental physical or mental injury; neglects or refuses to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter, emotional nuturing or health care; abandons the child; neglects or refuses to provide adequate supervision in relation to a child's age and level of development, or commits or allows to be committed any illegal sexual act upon a child, including incest, rape, indecent exposure, prostitution or allowing a child to be used in any sexually explicit visual material."

"We keep every complaint strictly confidential," said Hunter.

The law requires that a Central Registry in the Bureau of Child Protective Services be established to record reports of abuse or neglect.

The fact that your name or your child's name is in the Central Registry means that you have been contacted by a social worker who is concerned about your family's situation or that of a child in your care. Your social worker will be talking with you about these concerns, what they mean, and how you can receive services regarding these concerns.

"Wherever you find child abuse, you find a lot of stress," Hunter said. "Most child abuse results from to see to it that the right way," she added.

"The stress is often brought on by financial problems, health, or unemployment," Hunter noted.

In the last six months in Appomattox County, there have been reported 22 cases of child abuse. Ten of these are classes Founded; 12 were unfounded or thought to be Unfounded with reasons to suspect.

When the local social services agency receives a report of child abuse or neglect, the agency must determine whether the report should be investigated. If so, an immediate investigation is required. This means that a child protective services worker will contact the parent or guardian, the alleged abuser or neglecter and the child.

By law, a child protective services worker can interview a child and his or her siblings without the parents' permission. Often the worker will also need to contact any teacher, doctor, neighbor, and/or relative who has further information about the child's situation.

Within 45 days after the complaint is received, the social worker will submit a report to the state's Child Abuse and Neglect Registry, maintained by the Virginia Department of Social Services. Quite often the investigation may be completed sooner

Pamplin cannery now open

The Pamplin Cannery, operated by the Appomattox County School Board, will operate on Wednesday of each week beginning July 11.

Previously, the cannery was processing food on Mondays. "This change should be more effective," says R.B. Carter, director of Vocational Education in Appomattox County.

As weather conditions provide for better growing conditions, the operating days of the canneries will increase.

At present, two days per week are available in the county, since the Appomattox Cannery is open on Tuesday of each week.

Gardening tournament planned for county

It's that time of year again.

The soils of Appomattox County are beginning to bear the fruits of local gardening enthusiasts' labor.

Already, reports of outstanding gardening achievements are beginning to filter in from around the county.

Gardening is popular here. Therefore, the Times-Virginian is sponsoring the "Great Appomattox County Gardening Tournament" to recognize local gardeners whose hobby yields outstanding produce.

From now through Sept. 21, any unusually large potato, tomato, pumpkin, watermelon or canteloupe may be entered in the Great Appomattox County Gardening Tournament.

To enter, have your produce weighed at a local market with certified produce scales, and have your grocer give you a note certifying the weight of the fruit or vegetable. Only produce grown in Appomattox County is eligible for the tournament.

Have a picture made of yourself and the entry, or come by the Times-Virginian office and we'll make a picture for you.

The contest will close Friday, Sept. 21. Winners in the five categories will be announced in the Sept. 26 issue of the paper.

Winners in each of the five categories will receive a $25 prize.

Lions Club will meet Thursday

The Appomattox Lions Club will meet Thursday evening, July 12 at 6:45 at the Country Fare Restaurant.

A representative from the Dale Carnegie Institute will be guest speaker.

Father Darkleaf

By CALVIN ROBINSON

Many Appomattox travelers have visited the Lancaster, York area of Pennsylvania. Sunday I saw a vehicle with a Pennsylvania license and asked the trio what part of Pennsylvania? They replied, Lancaster and York area. Wore T-shirts with the RCA insignia of "His Master's Voice" with the famous white dog listening to a phonograph. Turned out they worked for RCA. Had visited our National Park Service. McLean House, etc. I put in a good word about General Grant ere the trio rode off into the night.

Found a faded newspaper clipping on my desk. Quote: "As he lay dying, Henry David Thoreau's aunt asked if he had made his peace with God. "I did not know that we had ever quarreled," he answered.

Garden experience: I stopped on something solid in my garden and turned out to be a golf ball. Miles from the country club, and I planted no golfs. Owner can obtain by coming by.

Weekend birth news will be taken over by reports of a five-legged calf in the county.

Many of us watched a TV special on the Statue of Liberty. I fell to wondering who the model might be for the face. During the show, it was suggested that the artist's mother was the likely model. Also, I tried to recall who the GI soldier was who, on entering New York harbor returning from World War One, remarked, "Lady, if you want to see me again, you will have to turn around."

Descendants and friends of descendants of Confederate Veteran Henry Clay Turnes gathered at the local WOW hall Sunday for their annual reunion. Turnes, Turvences, Springers, Pucketts, Abbitts, Conners, Hanankrais, Garriges, Browns, etc. Bill Conner counted those registered. Total of 62. A lavish spread of food, friendly exchange of news and looking forward to meeting again next year. Summed up by one senior: "For some it is the only time we see each other all year and it is nice to meet like this." I am all for reunions.

My first garden ripe tomato was a yellow one. Left me humming Tony Orlando's "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Oak Tree."

Big splash! Passed by a local motor court offering a pool, and it was filled - with water and people having a great time.

Thanks to Daryl Martin for spotting a key I had lost. Had rolled under the car. Nice to live in a town and county where somebody cares.

And, finally, thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Conner for three bags of vegetables. Down so dry, but Nature manages to provide. Did you have HAIL Saturday? For better or worse I turned the garden hose on Pete the terrapin and he seemed to enjoy the bath.

Thanks for reading, and seeya around, Growing Appomattox.

The chamber has taken on the "We Have It Made" campaign as a project, and is encouraging Appomattox County businesses to promote Virginia-made products from July 15 through the end of the month.
